GAMBLE MILL PROPERTY SOLD TO ULSH & BASHOAR

Sale Includes Water Rights and
About 12 Acres of Land

DEAL CLOSED FRIDAY

One of the biggest real estate transactions to be closed in Bellefonte for some time was the sale of the Gamble mill property, including everything, which takes in about 12 acres of land and the water rights, on Friday to Ullsh and Bashoar, both of Lewisburg. The consideration was about $60,000.

The deal had been pending for some time. Mr. Gamble has not been able to give the business the attention which he formerly did in making it a very successful enterprise, having been in failing health, and this had much to do with his decision to sell.

Since coming here from Jersey Shore about twenty years ago, Mr. Gamble became a leader in business circles. Quiet and unassuming, but using good judgment and care, he succeeded remarkably well. When he first took over the mill property, purchasing it from the late F. W. Crider, he was associated with Shem Spigelmyer and the late W. E. Gheen, of Jersey Shore. Mr. Gamble later purchased their rights and for about ten years had been the sole owner of the property, which is located along the east side of the P. R. R. tracks and between Spring creek and the railroad.

This tract originally included about 24 acres of land but years ago the Bush House, McClellan Block, and Fuel and Supply Co. coal yard were sold from it. Several years ago the J. H. & C. K. Eagle, Inc., bought a plot for the silk mill and about two years ago the Lauderbach-Zerby company purchased the property they occupy as a branch, the tract being cut in just about half by these sales.

Prior to the time that Mr. Gamble purchased the mill it was operated by C. T. Gerberich and still earlier by the Hales, Mr. Gerberich retiring when he sold his interests to Gamble, Gheen and company.

MAN AND WIFE IN JAIL

Rush Township Residents Charged with Violating Dry Law.

Timco Kaptuch and his wife, Jennie, residents of Rush Township, were placed in the jail in Bellefonte on Tuesday afternoon on charges of violating the prohibition law. They were unable to furnish bail in the sum of $500 each, imposed after a hearing before Justice of the Peace Thomas Byron, of Phillipsburg.

The husband and his wife were taken into custody on Saturday by Daniel Brink, constable and chief of police in Phillipsburg. A 27 gallon still contained a quantity of moonshine liquor, it is alleged. In addition to manufacturing and possessing the liquor it was offered for sale and some of it sold.

STATE POLICE BUSY

Stopped Motorists in Vicinity of McCoy's Works.

State police have been busy in Centre County the past week. They are on the lookout for violations of the law.

On Friday and Saturday evenings they were stationed in the vicinity of McCoy's Works and stopped a number of motorists, in each instance asking that the license card be shown. From what we could learn the state police found the laws were being observed and no arrests were made.

An Unusual Accident.

Edward B. McDowell struck a match on a fire alarm box at a street corner in Altoona on Saturday morning. He intended to light a cigar, but, "bang," went the alarm box. Flying bits of iron like shrapnel struck McDowell and Mrs. Margaret Housum, who was passing by. McDowell sustained a deep gash above one eye, and the woman was painfully bruised below the knees. Gas from a leaking line had gotten into the alarm box and exploded when the match was struck.

Caught Illegal Fishermen.

Thomas Moser, game protector of Centre County, last week caught five illegal fishermen. Four paid fines. Two paid $25 each and costs for fishing without a license. Two paid $20 each and costs for using illegal devices. Edgar Eckley refused and was given a hearing before Justice Kline Woodring on Monday afternoon. The case was dismissed for lack of evidence.

TWO MEN CHARGED WITH STARTING FOREST FIRES

Jacob Lamey, of Woodward,
Placed in Jail on Saturday.

FACE TRIAL IN COURT

Jacob Lamey, of Woodward, was brought to the Centre County jail in Bellefonte on Saturday morning by Forest Warden Slauterbeck, one of the forest rangers in the Lewistown section. Lamey is charged with starting forest fires and was placed in jail in default of $1,000 bail imposed by Squire E. H. Musser, of Woodward. Friends of Lamey furnished bail for him on Wednesday and he was released from jail.

Lamey, according to the information made against him, has been starting forest fires in order to get an opportunity to help fight them drawing pay from the state for such services. It is alleged he started a fire on Friday that burned over a considerable area before it was controlled.

There have been a number of fires in that section and firing of the woods was suspected some time ago. This led to a careful investigation, it is said, with the result that Lamey was taken into custody. He is a man about 55 years of age.

Warden Slauterbeck said another man had also been arrested for starting a forest fire by carelessness, the man being described as a salesman representing a paint concern, hailing from Philadelphia and a member of a party of fishermen from Millinburg. This man, whose name was not learned, furnished bail in the sum of $1,000 for his appearance in court.

The paint salesman, it is alleged, was taken into custody by state police who used bloodhounds, kept for that purpose, to trail the party who started a forest fire, apparently by accident, after a long chase, the bloodhounds brought up with the salesman, the latter seeming to be very much surprised and confused by the incident.

FIRE AT LOCK HAVEN

Bellefonte Firemen Responded to Call for Help.

Fire at Lock Haven on Monday evening destroyed the Fox garage on E. at Main street, causing a loss of $60,000. A gasoline tank, in which was stored 200 gallons of gasoline, exploded and made a spectacular scattering of flames. There were 39 automobiles in the garage and 28 were burned.

The Bellefonte fire department was called for and the Logan Fire company responded with the combination pumper. The Jersey Shore firemen also responded. The fire threatened the Irvin House and nearby theatre, being in the main business section of the city. The Lock Haven firemen had responded quickly and had the fire under control, getting well earned compliments for the efficiency they displayed.

Thomas Lamb Burned.

Thomas Lamb, assistant baggage master at the P. R. R. station, is at his home suffering from painful burns received on Sunday. Mr. Lamb has been accustomed to looking after the boiler which furnishes heat for the Pennsy buildings. On Sunday, as he was stoking the coals, there was a sudden and unexpected burst of the flames, which shot back from the mouth of the boiler, in front of which he was standing. It completely enveloped him and his face was badly burned, his hair and eye-brows singed. While not considered critical his condition is such that he has been suffering considerably and will not be able to return to work for some time.

Imported Colored Workmen.

The American Lime and Stone company, unable to secure sufficient workmen here, have started to import from other sections. About 15 colored laborers were brought in the past week. All our local industries seem to be unusually busy and have orders booked to keep going at the present speed for at least several months. The business outlook is very bright and is not merely local but apparently throughout the nation.

Raised Perplexing Question.

District Attorney Argold, of Clearfield, has raised a question by claiming that Raymond Askey, of Phillipsburg, held in Clearfield County for murder, should be tried in Centre County. Askey, it is alleged, sold liquor to a man from Clearfield County, who drank the liquor in Centre County and later died in Clearfield County.

More Historical Gleanings.

Dr. Constans Curtin Had Four Children--Interesting Family History--Sketch of Gen. Irvin.

Selling of the famous Colonial doorway that graced the front entrance on the High St. side of the historic Curtin stone house which is now almost razed by J. O. Heverly to make way for his new business building has led to some more interesting discoveries. The doorway was sold to A. L. Kocher, head of the architectural engineering department at the Pennsylvania State College and will be kept at the College museum.

As to the price paid for it, Mr. Heverly said, "I don't care to mention what it was. The doorway has been widely advertised and it was worth $500, but it was far from that figure that I sold it for."

This famous doorway, considered by experts in this line, is known far and wide as one of the true types of Colonial architecture of the period about 1800 and it is highly valued as an art treasure, few of which type remain. Henry Linn, of Bellefonte, has a copy of the Architectural Record, published in New York city, considered one of the leading publications of its kind, in which a splendid photo of the doorway, with an accompanying drawing proving the work to be exceptionally true. The publishers of the Architectural Record are looked up to as experts in architectural work and types who refuse to publish anything except work of true type and value, indicating the high opinion held of the Colonial doorway which has been secured by Mr. Kocher.

Through the kindness of several persons who are unusually well informed in earlier history of the town and families who resided in Bellefonte, the writer has learned that a mistake was inadvertently made in stating that Dr. and Mrs. Constans Curtin had two children, Constans, Jr., and Abigail, in publishing the historical sketch in The Republican for the first time in the issue of April 19.

Dr. and Mrs. Constans Curtin had four children, the two named dying in infancy. The other children were Dr. Roland Curtin, who was a very prominent physician who practiced in Philadelphia and who died but recently, in 1913, his body being at rest in Union cemetery in Bellefonte on the Curtin plot, and his sister, Mary Amelia Curtin.

The latter married Samuel Taylor, of Hartford, Conn., a first cousin and a widower with one child, Ada. They had one child, a daughter, Miss Mary Curtin Taylor, of Hartford, Conn., one of the two heirs who sold the property on Allegheny St. to Mr. Heverly.

Dr. Roland Curtin also married a first cousin, Mrs. Robinson, a widow with one daughter and two sons. They had one daughter, Miss Mary Curtin, of Philadelphia, who was associated with Miss Taylor, as joint heirs, in making sale of the property to Mr. Heverly.

The first husband of Mrs. Roland Curtin (Mr. Robinson) met a tragic death. He was about to close shutters at a window and fell out being fatally injured.

General Irvin, whom Mrs. Constans Curtin married after the death of Dr. Curtin, was for a time in partnership in business with Moses Thompson, a brother-in-law. Mr. Thompson said, "He was one of the best business men in Centre County and had been so benevolent, would have been its wealthiest."

On June 20, 1855, General Irvin offered the board of directors of the Pennsylvania State College, then in its formative period, the choice of three farms and one of 200 acres was selected and given. His brothers were Dr. William Irvin, Lot W., John and Geo. W.; his sisters—Susan, wife of Thomas Duncan and of James Potter, her second husband; Margaret, wife of Hon. Andrew Gregg, Naucy, wife of Dr. Benjamin Berry; Mary, wife of Moses Thompson; Elizabeth, wife of Roland Curtin, Jr.; Sarah, wife of Capt. W. Wilson Potter.

His sons, Constans and brother Edward, of Millersburg, had a very large and valuable painting of Gen. Irvin, it being a fine likeness inherited from their half-sister, Mrs. Sarah Kline Wilson, a niece of Gen. Irvin's first wife, which painting they kindly and very generously presented to the Pennsylvania State College.

SIXTY YEARS AGO

Finding of Statement Reveals Startling Changes Since Then.

How would you like to have lived sixty years ago?

There were no automobiles in those good old days. There were no state police. Government did not seem a complicated affair. The country was far less closely settled. Airplanes, also were unknown. But none of these things were hinted at in the old time document.

Read these figures and be your own judge.

The item is dated April 10, 1857—4 casks Pale Brandy, 41 gallons at $4—$164. 1 bbl Gin, 38 gallons at $1.50—$57. 1 bbl Whiskey, 40 gallons at $1.25—$50. And then on August 6, 1858, the following items:

3/4 ripe Gin, 105 gallons at 50c.—$52.50.

1/2 ripe Pale Brandy, 73 gallons at 50c.—$36.

4 casks Pale Brandy, 41 gallons at $4—$164.

1 bbl. Gin, 40 gallons at $1—$40. It is recalled that in those days, still delightful memories to some of the older residents of the county, liquor was absolutely pure and not liable to harm.

It was a common custom for many families to have and operate their own still, which was frequently in the open and never looked upon as something to be kept hidden.

There are farmers who recall those days. The binder, mower and other modern farm implements were not used in that period. It was customary for the farmers to have a grain frolic. A number of men with their grain cutting cradles swinging in skilled manner, circled about the field, harvesting the grain. A jug of pure whiskey was handy and those who desired drank as they completed the circle and reached the jug. They were braced by the liquor and apparently were better able to endure the heat of the sun and the tiresome work.

Had they taken a drink of most of the "hooch" which can be secured today only from a boot-legger, they would have been unbraced.

Academy Plays Bucknell Friday.

The game of base ball between the Bellefonte Academy and the Bucknell Reserves, looked forward to as one of the big games in local base ball, will be played tomorrow afternoon at Hughes' field instead of on Saturday as scheduled last week.

LEAGUE BASE BALL SCHEDULE

Official List of Games Announced by League.

With Hugo Brzdek, famous Penn State athletic director as president of the Centre County Base Ball League, the members including Bellefonte, State College, Centre Hall and Millheim, big doings are looked forward to by local sports for the coming season. The list of games as announced this week by Statistician John J. Bower is as follows:

May 30—Morning—Bellefonte at State and Millheim at Centre Hall; afternoon—State at Bellefonte and Centre Hall at Millheim.

June 2—Bellefonte at Millheim; State at Centre Hall; 7—State at Bellefonte; Centre Hall at Millheim. 9—Bellefonte at Centre Hall; State at Millheim. 14—Millheim at Centre Hall; Bellefonte at State. 16—Millheim at Bellefonte; Centre Hall at State. 21—Centre Hall at Bellefonte; State at Millheim. 25—Centre Hall at Millheim; State at Bellefonte. 28—State at Centre Hall; Bellefonte at Millheim. 30—Bellefonte at Centre Hall.

July 4—Millheim at State; Centre Hall at Bellefonte; Millheim at State; Centre Hall at Bellefonte. 7—Millheim at Centre Hall; Bellefonte at State. 12—Millheim at Bellefonte; Centre Hall at State. 14—Bellefonte at Centre Hall; State at Millheim. July 19—Millheim at Bellefonte. 21—State at Centre Hall. Bellefonte at Millheim. 26—Centre Hall at Bellefonte; Millheim at State. 28—Millheim at Centre Hall; State at Bellefonte.

August 2—Millheim at Bellefonte; Centre Hall at State. Bellefonte at Centre Hall; Millheim at State. 9—Bellefonte at State; Centre Hall at Millheim. 11—State at Centre Hall; Bellefonte at Millheim. 16—Centre Hall at Bellefonte; State at Millheim. 18—Millheim at Centre Hall; State at Bellefonte. 23—Millheim at Bellefonte; Centre Hall at State. 25—Bellefonte at Centre Hall; Millheim at State. 30—Bellefonte at State; Centre Hall at Millheim.

Sept. 1—Centre Hall at Bellefonte; State at Millheim.

Mr. Bower said that on some special occasions, such as July 4th and Business Men's picnic day, games may be played at Hecla park instead of on local athletic fields. The League has been favored in every town and each place has a good team so that close contests are anticipated.

FIRE DESTROYED HOME AT STATE COLLEGE

John Long Family Loses Everything They Had.

OTHER FIRES OF WEEK

Fire on Sunday morning about 2:30 o'clock burned the small two room house in which John Long, wife and son had been residing, at State College, the family losing everything they had. The house was owned by Lawrence Womer and was located on the back of his property, the one on the front of the lot being occupied by the Womers. It was insured for $300. The entire loss is estimated at $1,000.

The house was being painted and the paint was put inside on Saturday evening. On account of the odor of the fresh paint, the Longs were spending the night in the Womer home, which is considered fortunate as the paint fed the flames which burned quickly.

The fire was caused, it is thought, by an explosion of fumes from the oil in the paint. The Long family is temporarily at the home of an uncle of Mr. Long, Henry Wagner, who resides near State College.

BAKE SHOP BURNED.

Fire on Monday evening, discovered about 7:15 o'clock, burned the bake shop at Rockview to the ground. Prisoner firemen kept the flames from spreading to nearby buildings, including the boiler house. There was some flour in the bake shop, perhaps 20 barrels, which also burned. Six ovens were not damaged. The ovens were protected again by erection this week of another temporary building. The loss was not heavy and covered by insurance.

HOUSE AND BARN DESTROYED.

The new Western penitentiary at Rockview was also visited by fire on Wednesday afternoon of last week when a small vacant house and a fair sized barn on the farm known as the Eminhizer place was burned to the ground. Nothing was in either building and the loss has not been estimated as yet. The buildings were fully covered by insurance. It is not likely that they will be replaced.

BROUGHT HOME BANNER

Academy Relay Running Team Won Honors at Philadelphia.

In the races at Philadelphia during the week-end, featuring International and American races, college and prep schools, the Academy relay team won the one mile race and were awarded the banner, a very much coveted trophy which has been on display in the window at the Montgomery and Co. clothing store.

The Academy team, with a few instructors of the school, motored to Philadelphia, leaving here last Thursday morning and arriving in the city about 4 o'clock the same afternoon. The trip was made without difficulty.

By reaching the city in good time, the track team members and others of the party were given a chance to rest up and the whole of Friday was open to watch the other competing teams in their races.

In the mile relay race on Saturday, in which the Academy defeated some of the strongest prep school track teams of the east, the Academy runners led at each quarter and showed increasing strength, being approximately 75 yards ahead of their nearest competitors at the end of the mile.

Fox-Rankin.

Mrs. Annie Stott Rankin, of Harrisburg, and Dr. William W. Fox, of Hummelstown, were married on Thursday last week in Hagerstown, Md. Rev. Dr. Scott R. Wagner, pastor of the Hagerstown Reformed church, and a brother-in-law of Dr. Fox, performed the ceremony. Mrs. Fox was formerly a resident of Bellefonte. She first was married to Edward Rankin, at one time manager of the Western Union telegraph office in Bellefonte. After removing to Harrisburg she was associated with the dispensary of the Harrisburg hospital. Dr. and Mrs. Fox will reside in Hummelstown.

Fisher-Walker.

Charles E. Fisher, of Flemington, and Miss Hazel Walker, of Port Matilda, were united in marriage at Orviston by Rev. W. T. Merrick on Monday evening. They will reside in Lock Haven.

Rev. Ard Will Remain.

Rev. Wilson P. Ard, pastor of the Lutheran church, announced from the pulpit on Sunday evening that he had decided to remain in Bellefonte, refusing the tempting call to go to Norfolk, Va.

PITTSBURGH BUSINESS MEN HERE ON MAY 10

Local Business Men Plan to Entertain Special Party.

TRAVELING ON SPECIAL

Meeting of a joint committee of the Associated Business Men and the Bellefonte Board of Trade was held in the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday evening to arrange for the entertainment of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh party on May 10th.

The party will have a special train of 13 cars which will be parked back of the P. R. R. passenger station.

It is requested that business be suspended as far as practicable and the party be welcomed at the station. Burgess Walker is to issue a proclamation covering this and a band will be present.

Dr. Sam'l B. Linhart of the University of Pittsburgh and Dr. Philip S. Barte of the Carnegie Institute of Technology will give brief talks at the Academy and High School.

The party will be shown around town, in automobiles if possible, and an effort will be made to have an airplane fly over the town during the visit.

Ever citizen of Bellefonte is urged to make a special effort to come to the station and give the Pittsburgh visitors a hearty welcome so they remember Bellefonte.

On the special train in which the Pittsburgh business men are making their 22nd annual tour and which will stop at Bellefonte next Thursday from 10:45 a. m. to 11:50 a. m. will be William M. Forey, a son of the late Morris and Mrs. Annie M. Forey, of Bellefonte, who has made a marked impression on the citizens of Pittsburgh by virtue of his splendid business achievements in that city and who is the president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. The other officers of the organization and more than 125 members, including leading captains of industry in the Pittsburgh district, with the famous quartette of the Chamber of Commerce male choros, one of the best musical organizations of the United States, will be on the train—the Golden Rule Trade Special. The train will also carry its own motion picture machines and operators to make moving picture films of scenes along the route.

Legion Bowling Champions.

The finals for the bowling championship were played off on the Y alleys last Wednesday evening, the Legion leading off strong to a good finish. At the end of the six games the Champions were 310 pins to the good. Final score—American Legion 3687; Clerks 3377. The captains of the teams of the two leagues will meet at the Y on Tuesday evening, May 8, to arrange for a social get-together with all the members of the Legion in attendance. This event will likely take place the following week. The beautiful trophy will be awarded to the Legion who now hold it for the championship of last year.

Music Study Club Closes Year.

The Music Study club's last meeting of the year, the time for the annual election of officers, will be on Friday evening, May 11th, at 8 o'clock in the Parish House of the Episcopal church. With the election of officers and the transaction of such other business as may be brought before the meeting there will be a general program. All members are urgently requested to be present.

Prisoners Hear Concert.

Prisoners at the Rockview branch of the Western penitentiary were given a treat recently when the Pennsylvania State College military band rendered a Sunday afternoon concert program for their benefit. The concert was given in response to a request from prison officials.

Diphtheria at Beech Creek.

Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Rohrbaugh, of Beech Creek, is the victim of a mild case of diphtheria. The home has been quarantined and anti-toxin was administered to the patient, who is reported to be getting along nicely.

New Highway Superintendent.

William J. Carroll, an assistant engineer of the State Highway department, has been appointed superintendent of roads in Centre County, with headquarters in Bellefonte, he succeeds Wm. R. Hurley who resigned.

Big Fire in Tyrone.

One of the worst fires in Tyrone in years burned the Stevens, Miller and Hillis buildings, on Wednesday afternoon, causing a loss of $150,000.

Iron From Cuba.

Along the north shore of Cuba, near the sea at its eastern end, in three areas which formerly appeared to be simply expanses of barren ferruginous soil, recent exploration and test have shown that there exist deposits of a very pure iron ore, amounting to 2,000,000,000 or 3,000,000,000 tons. When deprived of the large percentage of water which it contains, this ore will yield from 40 to 45 per cent of iron. Ore from this source has already been exported to the United States.

Missed by a Hair.

B—Yes, by a hair's breadth. The plate just grazed my ear.

Find What CANADA has to offer YOU!

If your dream of success seems like a hopeless ambition, if you are discouraged trying to get ahead on high priced land, if your present location fails to give you opportunity, there is a new deal for you, a new chance in the fertile, virgin farms of Western Canada, where wheat produces 20 to 40 bushels to the acre, where the 1922 crop was biggest in history, where oats, barley and hay and fodder crops are the basis of a great dairy industry, and a man's work brings him success and prosperity.

Low Priced Land—the Last Great West

In Western Canada you still can buy virgin prairie land at $15 to $20 per acre, on long terms if desired, near to town, railroads, etc.—land such as has for many years produced the world's prize winning wheat, oats, barley, flax, rye, alfalfa. Canada has no "war time" land boom; prices are not inflated—you get in on the ground floor.

Taxes Favor the Farmer as Values Increase

The tax laws of Western Canada encourage the producing farmer. The tax on land is reduced when it is brought under cultivation—while on your buildings, machinery, improvements, personal property, automobile, there is no tax at all. A single crop is often worth more, acre for acre, than the cost of the land.

Buy on Exceptional Terms—32 Years to Pay

For the benefit of those wishing to buy land a national non-profit sharing organization—the Canada Colonization Association—has been established with head office at Winnipeg, and United States office at St. Paul. This Association offers selected land convenient to railways—much of it at $15 to $20 per acre—on very small cash payment; no further payment until third year; balance extended over thirty years, but purchaser may pay up and obtain title at any time if desired. Interest six percent per annum on deferred payments.

Special Excursion Rates to Western Canada

In order that you may inspect the land—see for yourself—judge of its value and fertility—special excursion trips of inspection will leave United States points on the first and third Tuesday of each month. Single fare plus $2 for the round trip, available from all principal centers. Take advantage of these low railroad rates to inspect for yourself the opportunities which Western Canada has to offer you. Seeing is believing. The nearest Canadian Government Agency will give you all information. The men in charge are Government officials, interested only in the service of the prospective settler. We help you find your opportunity. Let us know something of your position and receive free book with maps, and information how special railway rates can be arranged for a trip of inspection. Mail the coupon.

FREE HOMESTEADS are still available in some localities. Canada welcomes TOURISTS—Come and see our country for yourself. No passports required.

MRS. MARY LONG IS ENTHUSIASTIC

Lebanon Lady Overjoyed by the Way Tanlac Overcame Long-Standing Illness.

"I can never praise Tanlac enough," states Mrs. Mary Long, of 343 Gannon St., Lebanon, Pa.

"I had stomach trouble so bad I could scarcely eat, drink or sleep, and there was no let up of pain and suffering. What little I did eat both nauseated me and bloated me with gas until I was miserable beyond expression.

"I had taken a lot of different things without result, but Tanlac was just what I needed. My stomach today is as sound as a schoolgirl's, and there is not a single complaint I can make about my health. I have had many of my friends try Tanlac, and it never fails to give splendid results."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

Why She Became Man-Hater.

He was twelve and I was eleven. He invited me to a party and was going to take me home. He had on a new "palm beach" suit and I my Sunday organdie. Just as we were about to start for home it started to rain. Our hostess gave us an umbrella. We had not gone far when he ran away from me, with the umbrella. He was afraid he would get his new suit wet. Now I am a man-hater. Blame me?—Chicago Journal.

Funny Story Not His Forte.

President J. J. Bernet of the Nickel Plate road makes a reply which is humorous in itself:

"I have yours suggesting a funny story. Frankly, I am so serious that I wouldn't recognize one if I met it on the street. If I should perchance hear one I probably would forget it before I left the room."

"Would like to meet your wishes, but don't seem to have the material!"—New York Herald.

"But, man, he's insulted you?"
Prize Fighter—He can't insult me. When I fight I get paid for it—good—Life.

Housekeeper Is Wanted as Nursemaid for a Pup

Unable to get a housekeeper through the usual channels, Howard L. Davis, poultryman and dog fancier of New Egypt, N. J., is advertising for "a nurse for a thoroughbred, pedigreed, registered fox terrier pup." The object may be "matrimony if the applicant falls in love with the pup."

"Big wages to the right party" are promised by Davis, who says the big requirements will be to "care for the pup and get his owner a couple of meals a day, make his bed, and keep his house clean."

DARING BANDIT KEEPS TWO STATES TERRORIZED

Spencer's Band of Desperadoes Have Committed Eight Bank Robberies.

Muskogee, Okla.—A revival of the reign of terror which gripped the West when Jesse James was at the height of his career has resulted from the activities of an unmasked bandit who is leading his gang of desperadoes in a series of bank robberies that keeps the border counties of Kansas and Oklahoma terrorized.

A jewelry store and eight banks have been rifled by bandits under his direction in the past year. Rewards totaling $30,000 have been offered for him, dead or alive. This desperado is Al Spencer, who forsook the peaceful pursuits of farming to enter upon a career of banditry.

Spencer, cool, clear-headed and hard as steel, is recognized as a real "bad man." Hence the scores of officers who are scouring the border counties for him are convinced that the only way they can bring him in is in a coffin. Spencer has not resorted to killing as yet, but officers believe he would not hesitate should the necessity arise.

The short, stocky-built man who leads the bandits is an escaped convict. He has made the boast that he does not intend to serve any more time.

His boon companion and confederate is said to be Dick Gregg, a twenty-two-year-old youth, who is also a fugitive from justice. "The bandit of the Osage," as Spencer is known, has his headquarters in the hills near Bartlesville, Okla., it is known.

WRITES HIS "DIARY OF DEATH"

Poisoned Youth Records Grim Emotion as He Feels Grim Reaper Coming Nearer.

Hammond, La.—After swallowing 30 grains of arsenic following his rejection by a girl he refuses to name, Harry Devine, twenty years old, staggered ten miles through the moonlight from Tickfaw, La., to Hammond, writing on the way his "diary of death," recording his emotions every quarter-mile. The clear handwriting grew dim as he went on, and one of the last lines was: "Even dying is monotonous."

Found unconscious at Hammond, he was revived and may recover.

Two grains of arsenic would have killed him, physicians say, but the excessive amount probably saved his life. The youth was taken to jail, then to a private home. Citizens, mostly women, raised a fund for him. When he was told of the fund, he said:

"I hope I won't die. I'll spend the money on flowers and candy and a diamond ring for her. That ought to get her."

"I don't feel sick. Wonder if death will relieve me."

"I am passing a cemetery. Maybe they will bring me back here tomorrow. I feel I am dying, but I have no regrets."

BLOWN UNDER STREET CAR

Child, Walking With Mother, Toppled Over by Wind and Decapitated Before Her Eyes.

Steuenville, O.—Her four-year-old son, James, snatched from her by a terrific blast of wind, toppled into the street, and rolled under a street car, while she stood helpless—forced to watch the grinding wheels of the big car decapitate the lad—this was the ordeal through which Mrs. Anna Baker passed here.

Mrs. Baker was walking with her little son and he playfully ran across the street, leaving his mother on the sidewalk. He was returning to her when a terrific blast of wind picked him up and toppled him over. The momentum and force of the wind rolled the body under the wheels of the oncoming car, his head being cut cleanly from his body.

Mrs. Baker realized her son's danger when he was thrown over by the wind, and with a cry she sprang toward him. But the heavy car had ended the child's life before she reached the rail on which he lay.

The motorman said he saw the boy cross the street, but had not noticed him returning to his mother, nor did he realize that the boy was under his car until he felt the jolt.

Osages Richest People in World

Oil Lease Sale Adds $8,000,000 to Already Bulging Coffers of Tribe.

The Osage Indians are the richest people in the world. How would you like to be one of them?

Pawhuska, Okla.—In a little motion picture house here the twenty-first lease sale of the Osage Indian nation was held recently, with oil kings or their representatives forming the most important part of the audience, says the New York Herald. Col. Edward Walter, who has conducted all Osage sales since the first, in 1912, was the auctioneer, and had the chief speaking part. When his gavel fell at the conclusion of the performance he had sold 128 tracts of what is probably the richest undeveloped oil land in the country for $8,290,100. Four sales netted more than a million dollars each and one man, Walter Phillips, paid $1,325,000 for a lease on 100 acres.

To heap more abundance into the strong boxes of the Osages, the richest aborigines in the world, 32,000 acres were sold, tract by tract, while Secretary Hubert Work of the Interior department and Charles H. Burke, Indian commissioner, were interested witnesses of the auction along with United States Senators Robert L. Owen and J. W. Harrell.

As the leases were knocked down to the highest bidders Secretary Work sat like an enchanted, watching the play of bidding and the struggle of the greatest oil men of the nation to get the privilege of drilling for the liquid gold under the lands of the Osages.

Brought Highest Prices.

When Walter Phillips, independent oil man of Tulsa, paid his $1,325,000 the government officials got a new insight into the source of revenue of the Osage tribe. On several other tracts bids of more than a million dollars were made. These were tracts near the great Burbank oil field, which is now producing more than 70,000 barrels of oil daily.

One-eighth of this oil, which brings $2.50 a barrel, goes to the Osage tribe besides the money paid for the leases. Each member of the tribe is now receiving approximately one thousand dollars a month income as the result of oil development on the tribal lands which are owned in common.

On the streets of Pawhuska Secretary Work passed many of his Indian wards, wrapped in brightly colored blankets and walking in the majestic style of the full-blooded Indian. But the automobiles which waited, with chauffeurs, for these Indians, were more expensive and elaborately equipped than anything Secretary Work has ever seen. From his income of a $1,000 a month the average Osage buys and maintains the finest automobile he can find. He may live in a little tent, but his automobile costs more than $10,000 a year.

Total receipts for the Osage leases offered were expected to come to more than $10,000,000, but high discount rates and tightening of the money market was blamed by the operators for the conservative bidding.

The Osage Indians are the richest people in the world per capita. The total wealth of the tribe is estimated at around $31,312,005.

The Osage tribe, which consists of 2,118 Indians, was made wealthy by the discovery of oil on their reservation. It is believed that the Osage tribe owns the richest producing oil field in the United States.

Tells of Great Wealth.

"The richest producing oil field in the United States is found in the Osage nation in Oklahoma," Mr. Burke, Indian commissioner, said, "and belongs to the Osage tribe of Indians. These lands were purchased by the Osages from the Cherokee Indians at a price of $1.25 an acre. The Cherokees, at the time of this sale in June, 1883, thought they had made a fine bargain with the Osages.

"The Osages were allotted the surface of the lands and the mineral rights were reserved for the benefit of all of the Osage Indians, and they share equally in oil royalties and bonuses. Each enrolled Osage Indian last year received from the government approximately $10,000. Some families received as high as $80,000, derived largely from oil royalties and bonuses.

"At a recent sale of Osage leases there were paid in bonuses more than $11,000,000, and the Osage Indians will receive, in addition to this amount, one-fifth and one-sixth royalties required under the terms of the leases, the royalties depending on the capacity of the wells. There were produced in the Osage reservation last year 29,000,000 barrels of oil."

Of the 2,118 Osage Indians, 1,091 are male and 1,027 female. There are 776 children in the tribe. Of the Indians, 755 are full blood, 50 are more than half-blood and 1,318 are half or less than half-blood. There are 94 of the children enrolled in the government school, Mr. Burke said, with an average attendance of 69.

The total individual and tribal property of the Osage Indians is $31,312,005. The total individual property is $24,106,135. The value of their lands is estimated by Mr. Burke to be $5,635,289. The individuals of the tribe have $10,030,442 in banks or in the hands of government superintendents. The homes, furniture, barns, etc., of the Osage Indians are valued at $2,900,000.

While the Indian bureau has not received official reports regarding how the Osage Indians spend their money, they have heard from various sources that prosperity has "gone to the heads of the Indians." The Indians, it is said, spend more money for beads and paints and other finery dear to their heart than do the society belles of New York city.

Although Pawhuska is the capital of the Osage nation, few of the Indians live there. They have a village of their own outside. It is a squat, squalid village with the oil rigs backing up to them, surrounded by dust and weeds. There is a church and a schoolhouse and a couple of thousand dogs. The place gives the impression of being anything but the homeland of the richest people in the world.

A few of the better class of Indians do live in Pawhuska itself, although the great majority of them prefer the farms or the native villages.

The city Indians have some of the best houses in the town, but they do most of their living in the back yard or on the front porch.

Chief Meets Prima Donna

Bacon Rind is the moving spirit of the Osages. He has been in Washington and conferred with the Great White Father, but he does not care to meet ordinary passers-by—except strangers of more than passing consequence, as when a noted prima donna sang at Tulsa. In the foyer of a hotel in Tulsa hangs a picture of this modern chief. Her interest piqued by the picture, the diva sent for Bacon Rind, who arrived, not in his picturesque feathers, but in the best suit of clothes in Oklahoma. From a rear view he looked like a snappy oil promoter. The two walked up and down the local Peacock Alley and then the famous visitor sang a song for him. Bacon Rind listened respectfully—not to be swept from his feet.

"Pretty good," he grunted when she had finished—and walked away.

Despite the fact that these Indians are the richest in the world they are slowly dying out. The number of pure bloods is constantly growing less. At one time the Osages numbered a million. Now they are about 2,000, and of these only 900 are full-blooded Osages.

Great joy has recently been caused not only among the Osage Indians, but among other tribes who own valuable lands, by the decision of the government that it will not collect taxes on oil lands which are owned by these wards of the nation.

This decision has resulted in the repayment by the government of many thousands of dollars which it had collected in income taxes from the Indians. Jackson Barnett, reputed to be the richest of all the Indians, was reimbursed to the sum of $216,000, which he had paid in taxes since 1917, while six others received sums ranging from $3,000 to $100,000.

Disposal of the fortune of Barnett has been arranged at his request to keep it out of the hands of "designing persons" when he dies, according to Commissioner of Indian Affairs Burke. The plan, it was said, assures Barnett an income of about $50,000 a year during his life and disposes of the bulk of his estate. Through Secretary of the Interior Fall the sixty-year-old Creek made over $550,000 to the American Baptist Home at Muskogee, his home town, to be deposited with a New York trust company. To his white wife, Anna Laura Barnett, he bequeathed a similar sum. He left $100,000 on deposit with the Interior department.

Altoona, Pa.—The smallest income tax payment received at the local internal revenue office was 5 cents, paid by a young woman whose income was slightly more than $1,000 last year.

The tax was paid in a postal money order, which cost 3 cents.

Another income tax of 8 cents was received and a third for 10 cents.

Funeral Customs Alike.

The discovery of human hair in the tomb of Tutankhamen suggests a parallel between Korean and Egyptian funeral customs. The Korean, when he buries his ancestor, places with him in the grave not only the precious porcelain vessels from which he ate and drank, but also all the nail parings and hair combings of his life. Similar customs are said to exist in many other countries. Probably the custom is due to the widespread superstition that in order to bewitch a person it is necessary to have some part of his body, such as hair or nail, and that these remnants are buried so that he may not fall into the hands of an enemy of the dead man. —Detroit News.

APPROVES ACTION BY FRANCE

Legion National Executive Committee O. K.'s Occupation of Territories in Ruhr Valley.

The action of France in occupying certain territories in the Ruhr valley was given a stamp of approval by the national executive committee of the American Legion at a recent meeting in Indianapolis attended by representatives from every state.

A resolution charged that the Germans had attempted to wreck the financial system of their country for the purpose of avoiding payment and "by evasion and trickery sought to deprive France of the awards made by the peace conference." The committee voted to send copies of the resolution to President Harding, the congress and the French ambassador to the United States.

Brig. Gen. John R. McQuigg of Cleveland, chairman of the committee which formulated the resolution, has issued a statement giving the reasons for the Legion's support of France, as follows:

First: Because the award was a righteous one rendered by a competent court and accepted by Germany.

Second: Because Germany has voluntarily defaulted and refused to pay and has wrecked her whole financial system to avoid payment.

Third: Because the course taken by France is the only effective course left to her in dealing with an obstinate debtor.

Fourth: Because Germany has refused to levy taxes and take other steps necessary to enable her to pay the debt. We in the United States are paying three times as much national tax as Germany, and France is paying more than four times as much per capita as Germany.

Fifth: Because if Germany is not made to pay the damage caused by her, some one else will have to pay it.

Sixth: Because, if Germany is not made to pay, the slaughter and expenditure of material and effort necessary to win on the battlefield will have been, to a large extent, in vain, and there will be little to deter nations from running amuck in the future and making an assault on civilization whenever they think they are sufficiently strong to win.

LEGION BUSINESS BY RADIO

Commander Doyle of Massachusetts State Department Is Arranging for Important Innovation.

A personal address to the 50,000 members of the American Legion in Massachusetts every month, is the plan of William H. Doyle, commander of the Massachusetts department of the Legion, who is arranging for the installation of a radio in every post headquarters. Broadcasting of all legislative and business of interest to World War veterans is being contemplated by the commander as a means of reaching directly the thousands of Legion members in their homes and at their post meetings.

According to plans now being formulated, Legion officials of the state will provide an evening's entertainment at the broadcasting station on the evening their fellow Legion members are "listening in." They will aim to combine an hour's pleasure with the business of the posts, it is said. The scheme also would aid the sponsors of legislation in putting their ideas before thousands of radio enthusiasts in each community, in addition to the Legion members. The innovation proposed by Commander Doyle has been approved by the Legion national headquarters.

Weekly concerts for the disabled war veterans in the Bay State hospitals are included in the plans of the Legion officer, and are now being arranged by the department officers.

CHICAGO'S ZERO HOUR CLUB

Roosevelt Legion Post Has Subsidiary Organization to Aid Beneficiary at Death of Member.

A new angle on the American Legion's policy of service to its membership has been developed by the Theodore Roosevelt post of Chicago in its Zero Hour club. This subsidiary organization within the post proposes to pay a benefit of $100 to the beneficiary of any of its members who die, immediately upon receipt of the notice of his death. The plan, post officials assert, will work for the relief of a veteran's beneficiary by tiding him over the period which elapses between the death and the time when the insurance companies begin payment of the life insurance.

Officers of the Zero Hour club also are officers of the Legion post, and only accredited Legion members in good standing are eligible to become participants in the club. Annual dues are $2.50, with a further assessment of $1 upon the death of any of the club's members. Membership in the Zero Hour club, the president states, is not insurance, but it is protection for a limited amount, better, cheaper and quicker than insurance.

PERMANENT PEACE IS URGED

Resolution Is to Be Presented to President and Congress by Brig. Gen. Roy Hoffman.

Brig. Gen. Roy Hoffman of Oklahoma City, Okla., has been selected by the legislature of the state to present a resolution memorializing the President and congress for the promotion of permanent peace among nations as outlined by the Interallied Veterans' federation, representing 15,000,000 World war veterans.

The resolution primarily calls for the establishment of a world court, the reduction of armament, except for the upholding of court decrees; opposition to territorial aggrandizement, and full publicity for international agreements between governments.

The declaration of principles, which formed the basis of the resolution sent by the Oklahoma lawmakers to congress, is that adopted by the federation at its world convention held in New Orleans during the recent American Legion convention. The Legion is a member body of the federation which is also known as "Fidac."

General Hoffman was given credit for the writing of many of the principles for the Fidac convention.

A native of the Southwest, General Hoffman became a resident of Indian territory, now Oklahoma, as soon as that country was thrown open for white settlement. Early in life, he established the first daily newspaper

Brig. Gen. Roy Hoffman.

In Guthrie, during the operation of which he was preparing for admission to the bar, which he accomplished in 1891. As United States attorney in 1897, he resigned to enlist as a private for service in the Spanish-American war, and served throughout the war, attaining the rank of captain. In 1900, on the death of the colonel of the Oklahoma Guard regiment, Mr. Hoffman succeeded to the command of the regiment, serving through domestic and Indian troubles. He was called for border service in 1916 and was mustered out in March, 1917, only to be called to the colors 30 days later for World war service.

Promoted to brigadier general on August 6, 1917, General Hoffman commanded a brigade at Camp Bowie and assisted in organizing the Thirty-sixth division. He later organized the Ninety-third division and commanded it in action. During the battle of Cantigny he was with the First division, also saw service in the Toul sector, at St. Mihiel, and in the defensive Pleudry sector. He received the decoration of commander of the Legion of Honor, conferred in person by Marshal Foch.

A charter member of the American Legion, General Hoffman has been active in promoting the interests of the organization. He has attended all national conventions as a delegate and has served as national executive committee member from Oklahoma. He was named a member of the committee to meet the F. I. D. A. C., and was a delegate to the allied convention.

OWSLEY HAS GOOD MEMORY

Commander Recognizes Member of His Camp When They Meet in an Illinois City.

Distance means little to the American Legion or its officers.

National Commander Alvin Owsley recently surprised Legionnaires in an Illinois town, and caused a post commander a mild embarrassment by his immediate recognition of a former "buddy" in service at an Oklahoma camp, hundreds of miles away from that town.

Commander Owsley was being entertained at a meeting of the Jefferson post 141, Mt. Vernon, Ill., and the post commander was introducing the various members of his organization to the guest of honor.

Momentarily forgetting a member's name, the local man said, "The next is er—"

"Hello, Baird," said Commander Owsley, "what in the world are you doing here?"

Baird was a soldier who had been stationed at the camp when the leader of the Legion was a captain at the post, but he recognized the man before the post commander could think of the member's name.

Ingenious.

Private Bimp was a modest and sensitive man who dreaded a rebuff. He had fallen in love with the prettiest girl within a mile of the camp, but hesitating proposing for fear that she would turn him down. At last, when he could stand the suspense no longer, he was struck by an inspiration. Hastily seizing a pen, he wrote her an anonymous letter asking her to marry him. —American Legion Weekly.

BRIDE CURED OF HOMESICKNESS

Made Statement Which Made Her Husband Once Again a War-Mad Killer.

PAYS PRICE OF FOLLY

Los Angeles, Cal.—Homesickness is at the center of the tragic case of Yvonne Wilmot, Belgian bride of this city. It overwhelmed her love for her husband, provoked affection for a bachelor neighbor, drove her to the verge of suicide, and then shattered a triangle of happiness with a pistol shot. The aftermath will come with the trial of Scott Wilmot, her husband, charged with shooting Paul Peters, the bachelor interloper.

Yvonne, when only sixteen years old, became a bride of Wilmot, who was suffering from shell shock in a Belgian hospital. That was five years ago. Wilmot and his bride came to America and began living in a small house in this city. Wilmot, between frequent periods of illness, worked as a clerk.

Bachelor Next Door.

Yvonne became homesick. Her husband was working all of the time when he was not ill. He had no time to comfort her. Peters, who lived next door, attracted her and gained her confidence. She gave him her jewels, linen, tea set—and finally left her home for him.

All this she set forth in a lurid confession which she signed and gave her husband. She threatened to drown herself. Wilmot read the statement and fainted. Four hours later he went to Peters with a gun.

Peters ran from the white-lipped fighter. Wilmot fired a shot, and Peters surrendered, with blood streaming over his arm. He, too, with the pistol at his heart, signed the confession. Then he had Wilmot arrested. The veteran pleaded that he was suffering from a nervous shock when he shot Peters. The bachelor denies the truth of the confession. All will be settled in court soon.

But Yvonne is cured of her homesickness. She will not go back to her beloved Belgium. She hopes for her husband's vindication as the basis for a full reconciliation.

"I go where he goes and share what he has," is her purpose.

BOY KILLED ON NATURE JAUNT

Curis Just Cut and Man's Attire Donned, Climb in Tree Proves Fatal.

Washington.—Billy Boyd, age eight, was graduated from civics and golden curls to olive drab and a man's haircut. During the luncheon period from the Petworth school, where he led the third grade, he donned his suit of khaki, his curls having been shorn earlier in the day. Then he wrapped his father's necktie about his throat, and demanded that his hair be combed "man style" before he went back to school.

Miss E. R. Herron, teacher of Billy's class had arranged that the afternoon be spent in the old Soldiers' Home grounds on a nature jaunt. There were games and frolicking. At 2:45 o'clock Miss Herron, called the roll. A boy playmate called to the teacher: "Billy's hurt. He's under that tree over there," pointing to a large elm a hundred feet distant from which the boy had fallen and broken his neck.

State College Fathers' Day.

"Dad" is going to have the time of his life on Saturday, May 5, provided, of course, that he is "Dad" of a Penn State son or daughter. It will be the annual celebration of Fathers' Day at State College and more than 1,000 parents are expected to visit the campus over the weekend as guests of the men and women students. Although Fathers' Day at Penn State was originally set aside as a time exclusively for the entertainment of the "dads" many mothers also attend and enjoy the occasion. At last year's gathering the Association of Parents of Penn State was formed with more than 800 charter members and the annual meeting of the "Pops" will be held on Saturday. Five athletic events, a mass meeting, smokers and other forms of entertainment are being provided for the weekend by the student committee in charge. The majority of the fathers will bunk with their sons in fraternities and rooming houses.

High School Day at State.

The annual celebration of High School Day at State College will take place on May 12 this year and will be featured as usual by the annual interscholastic track and field meet for the J. G. White trophy cup. More than 25 schools of the state have already entered teams in the meet and it is expected that over 300 schoolboy athletes will take part in the day's program, and also take occasion to inspect the college. The track events will start in the morning and the finals will be run off in the afternoon. Caps and medals will be presented to winners by the Penn State athletic authorities. Harrisburg Tech took first honors in last year's meet and will again be represented by a strong team.

There is a space and then the following: "Rebecca, his wife, died Dec. 13, 1875, aged 93. "Gone but not forgotten." This stone was noticed by one of our readers, a person keenly interested in historical events relating to Belleville. The name Ort is not familiar to the present generation in Belleville but possibly was fifty years ago. Do any of our readers know of any descendants of this family who are living?

OVER THE COUNTY

H. E. Crouse, widely known huckster from Aaronsburg, is the proud owner of a new Franklin sedan.

J. A. Detweiler has erected a garage on the top of Nittany mountain at his Grand View park. He now contemplates erecting a number of cottages for leasing for periods during the summer.

Eight deer were recently seen in a field on the Harter Bros. farm at Coburn, tenanted by W. A. Carson. One was white and was thought to be a buck. Mr. Carson says the deer come to his fields almost every day.

To get rid of odds and ends of new lumber and some left over from roofing from material purchased in making repairs to the Odd Fellows hall in Centre Hall, a public sale was held on Saturday evening. It was well attended and demonstrated a good method to dispose of left-over building material.

A quart bottle of milk saved a Chevrolet touring for Domes S. Ishler, mail carrier on Centre Hall R. F. D. 2. While descending a hill in his car, Mr. Ishler felt an uncomfortably warm air at his feet. Glancing downward, he noticed there was a fire. A newspaper had been ignited at his feet, flames having burned through the dash of the Chevrolet. In throwing away the burning paper, control of the car was lost and it was ditched. The blaze was burning freely by this time and Mr. Ishler thought of a quart bottle of milk in the car, which he applied with good effect.

After a lapse of 21 years the stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Miller, of Millheim, on April 21st, leaving a baby boy.

Phillipsburg will vote on a proposal to issue bonds for $30,000 for street improvements. Money wisely spent on street improvements is well invested.

Some folks in Millheim are recommending that no mercy be given to motorists who speed through their borough. In view of such opinions, it may be well to keep within the 15 mile limit while in Millheim.

Quite a large number of farmers had at least a part of their oats drilled last week just before the rain came. Frank Donovan, of near town, was among the number. Most of the corn ground is ploughed and farmers generally are well along with their work in spite of the lateness of the season.

A motor trip over roads in Centre, Huntingdon and Blair counties emphasizes the impression that there are better roads in Centre County. The roads in Blair County are not so good and in Huntingdon County they appear worse. Centre County's main highways, thanks for state help, are in splendid shape. The side roads, however, in many sections may be much improved and they should be. In Nittany valley, between Belleville and Lock Haven, the road is being patched preparatory to oiling and resurfacing. This is also the case with the road between Centre Hall, Spring Mills and Millheim.

Mrs. C. M. Parrish Dead.

Mrs. C. M. Parrish died at the Parrish home on East Curtin street on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. She had been ill for six weeks and had been falling rapidly, her condition being regarded as critical since Wednesday of last week. Dr. McCree, a member of the medical staff of the Jefferson hospital, of Philadelphia, was called here and arrived on Friday evening. He diagnosed the cause as hardening of the liver and after-effects of the "flu", Mrs. Parrish having never fully recovered from what had apparently been a slight attack of the malady last winter. Dr. McCree said there was still hope, that it would be about 24 hours until the crisis was reached. Every effort was put forth to bring a desired change but all was in vain. Mrs. Parrish was born in Belleville, a daughter of Joseph (deceased) and Mrs. Mary Fox. Rose Fox, as she was familiarly known, graduated from the Belleville High School and took a special course preparing her for teaching, after which she became a teacher in the Belleville public schools. She married Mr. Parrish twenty years ago on April 23rd. She was an active member of St. John's Catholic church and was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends. Surviving are her husband; two children: Joseph, a student at Dickinson College and Mary, a Freshman in High School; her mother, of Belleville; the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Howard Gearhart, of Millville, N. J.; Mrs. LeRoy Plumb, of Newton, Kansas; Anne, Joseph, Alice and James, at home. Funeral services were held in St. John's Catholic church on Wednesday morning and burial made in the Catholic cemetery.

James M. Williams Dead.

James M. Williams, postmaster at State College, one of that town's best known residents, died on Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock from pleuro-pneumonia, after a week's illness. His death was attributed to a collapse hastened by worries over managing of the postoffice. Born at Lemont, the only son of Nelson, deceased, and Mrs. Julia Williams, who is residing at Centre Hall, the deceased was only 56 years old and, excepting several years in which he resided in Belleville, he had always lived in the vicinity of State College. During the time that he resided in Belleville he was employed by the Potter-Hoy Hardware Co. He learned the tinning business under J. W. Getz, of Lemont, and followed this occupation, engaging in business for himself at State College when he left the employ of the Potter-Hoy Hardware Co. He was quite successful and took an active interest in the affairs of his home town, serving for years as a school director and as tax collector, resigning from the latter to become postmaster about one year ago, succeeding Robert M. Foster. He is survived by his widow, whose maiden name was Miss Sarah Brishin, of Unionville; his mother, and three sons: Harold, of New York; Donald, of Lansing, Mich.; and Roy, of State College. Funeral services were held on Tuesday morning and burial made at Pine Hall.

Mrs. Lucy M. King Dead.

Mrs. Lucy M. King, a daughter of Mrs. Mary Haines, of Belleville, died at the home of her foster son, Charles Haines, at Sunbury on Friday evening at 9 o'clock from heart trouble. Mrs. King was afflicted suddenly and her death came as a big surprise to her family and friends. She was born in Belleville, a daughter of David and Mrs. Mary Haines. She was 61 years, 9 months and 9 days old. Her father died some years ago. Surviving are her mother, who resides here; four children and two brothers, Charles and William, former residents of Belleville who have been located at McKeesport for some years. Funeral services were held on Monday and burial made at Sunbury.

Mrs. Sarah Phillips Dead.

Mrs. Sarah Phillips, of Colyer, died on Monday from cancer. She was a daughter of William and Pollis Mulbarger and was 70 years old. Her husband, Peter Phillips, died six years ago. Surviving are the following children: William, of Altoona; Mrs. Fred Pultz, Milroy; Mrs. Albert Klinefelter, Boalsburg; Margaret, at home; Frank, of Potlatch Mills; one sister, Mrs. Ellen Hess, of Potlatch Mills; and one brother, William, of Boalsburg. Funeral services were held this Thursday and burial made at Tusseyville.

John McCool Dead.

John McCool, a lifelong resident of Spring Mills, died Wednesday of last week from infirmities caused by age. He was 75 years old. Surviving are two sons and one daughter: Al, of Buffalo Run; Jacob and Mrs. Hattie Duck, of Spring Mills. Burial was made in Georges Valley cemetery on Monday.

Death of an Infant.

Mary Wilson, 3 months old, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilson, of Orriston, died on Monday. The body was brought to the home of the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wilson, of Beech Creek, and burial made in Clark's cemetery.

Adam Finkle Dead.

Adam Finkle, a lifelong resident of Spring Mills, died Wednesday of last week from diabetes. He was 55 years old. Surviving are his widow and four children. Burial was made on Saturday in the Georges Valley cemetery.

WHAT ONE CITY THINKS

Of the Walter L. Main Circus Which Appears Here May 7.

The Shamokin, Pa., News has the following to say of The Walter L. Main Circus which gives two performances in Belleville on Monday, May 7:

"The Walter L. Main Circus came, conquered and left; and left a most pleasing impression upon the vast throngs that poured into the 'big top' on the Edgewood car barn plot yesterday afternoon and evening.

"The circus played to a record breaking crowd yesterday afternoon, in fact people were turned away, and it became necessary to spread straw about the rings to afford seating capacity for the big crowd that had been admitted to the big tent. An opportunity was given those who were unable to find seating accommodations to get their money back, an offer unusual on the part of a circus. Despite the heavy rains last night, the big tent was taxed to even greater extent than in the afternoon, and hundreds were unable to get in.

"Not in the history of Shamokin has there been a circus with such courteous, kindly and obliging attaches as those carried by the Walter L. Main Circus.

"Women with children were given the first consideration. They assisted the kiddies to the tiers of seats, looked after their wants, and otherwise gave attention to the crowd. As a consequence the Walter L. Main Show gained the esteem of women and children, and the attendant commendation of the men.

"The show proved clean, entertaining and satisfying in every department and it is safe to predict that if Walter L. Main decides to send his 'big top' back here a year hence he will be greeted by an even larger throng than that which greeted the circus yesterday."

Dog Owners Paid Fines.

Two residents of Martha paid a fine of $25 each and costs last week to Thomas Mosier, game protector, when confronted with evidence that their dogs had been caught chasing deer.

Ten Millions of Dollars' worth of New Central Office Equipment will be added to the Bell System in Pennsylvania this year

THIS money will be spent for new switchboards, additions to present switchboards, terminal room equipment and a thousand and one other things which go to make up a modern telephone office.

The investment for new equipment will cover every central office in Pennsylvania.

As fast as equipment is received from the factories it is placed into service. Never was the demand for telephone service greater and never in the history of the telephone company were such tremendous amounts of equipment placed in one year.

The venerable Matthias Rider, a Civil war veteran and member of Gen. Beaver's command, celebrated his 83rd birthday quietly at his home at Gatesburg where he has spent the latter years of a life retired and enjoys remarkably good health. He was the recipient of many gifts. Congratulations and best wishes for many returns of the day.

A real birthday surprise was given Mrs. E. Meline Rider Hastings at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dearmit, at Gatesburg, on General Grant's birthday. The old dame, though fourscore years old, is hale and brisk. Long before the noon hour the home was filled with well wishers and at 12 o'clock sharp the big table was laden with the best of the land and all present got well filled. The afternoon was spent in music and games. Fun and early day reminiscences, as the old lady spent her years there, were indulged in. She seemed like a mother to everybody. She received a large number of useful and valuable presents for which she was grateful. As the shades of evening came, the guests took their leave for their homes, wishing Mrs. Hastings more happy birthdays.

Saw Large Wild Animal.

Jesse Herman, of Roscrans, on Monday night on the road through the Narrows between Loganton and Salona, saw a large wild animal which he believed to be a panther. The animal was described by Herman as being about 4 feet in length with a long tail, a grey body and brown stripes. It was seen near the "horseshoe curve" near Spruce run. He was alone in his automobile and went to summon other men and dogs. On returning to the curve, however, they could find no trace of the animal.

Tribute to the Grand Canyon Brings It Vividly Before the Reader's Vision.

In the pulseless air, under the blue of the desert sky, a titian chasm, stretching farther than eye can see. In its vast depths a great mountain range, carved by wind and water into palace and pyramid, obelisk and sphinx, pinnacle and turret, tower and dome. A wilderness of rugged, beautiful forms—not cold gray of rock or monotone green of forest, but glowing in red and blue and purple and orange melted and mixed by cosmic fires.

An abyss of ever-changing color and form. In the morning, delicately lovely with upcurling mists of faintest rose and palest lavender and purest white, through which peak and pyramid gleam. Under the glare of noon-day sun, overwhelming in stark form and burning hue. At twilight, asleep in soft purples and blues of night. Under the moon, a mystery of dim forms and faint shadows.

Majestic in sculptural beauty, dazzling in glorious hues; serene, superb, in the pulseless air, under the blue of the desert sky.—Christian Science Monitor.

Find British Army Buttons

Revolutionary Camps Around New York Are Still Yielding Up Relics of Conflict.

New York.—Many British army buttons of the War of Independence which are on exhibition in our museums were dug up in sections in and near New York where the British had their encampments. These little mementos of the various corps of the British army are remarkable for the variety of types which they display and for their perfection of workmanship. For 40 years William L. Calver of the field exploration committee of the New York Historical society has been bringing them to light and collecting them.

"The British late Eighteenth century military buttons," says Mr. Calver in the quarterly bulletin of the society, "are distinguishable by the numeral they bear, or by the initial letters of the corps, as described below. Numerical titles were bestowed on the regiments of the British army in 1751; previous to that time they had been named for their colonels, and it was decreed in 1767 that the number of each regiment be placed upon the buttons of its uniforms.

"At the time when the first numbered button was issued—September 21, 1767—it was stated that the number of each regiment was to be placed on the buttons of the uniforms of the officers and men of the British army. The royal warrant of December 19, 1768, as it pertained to the cavalry, reads as follows: 'The number of each regiment to be on the buttons of the uniforms of the officers and men, except the regiments of Dragon Guards. The initial letter of the title of those corps to be on the buttons.' For the Infantry the warrant directs: 'The number of each regiment to be on the buttons of the officers and men.'

Copied the French.

"We cannot say positively that the uniform buttons of the British soldiers were first numbered in 1768. There are evidences that numerical designations were placed upon the buttons of some regiments earlier than the date mentioned above. We may presume that in this detail the British followed closely after the French, who prescribed numbered buttons for the troops of the line December 11, 1762. We must confess that we find no specimens whatever of numbered, or inscribed, buttons of practically every regiment of the British army present on these shores during the war. There can be no doubt that the British regulations as they pertained to the buttons were strictly observed, and the practice was promptly adopted by the Americans at the beginning of hostilities.

"The results of the order were far-reaching. The numbered buttons identified, alive or dead, the officers or men who wore them; rendered desertion or any dereliction of duty more difficult, and to a considerable degree made esprit du corps. The units of the army came hither, then, marked for identification, and the buttons which we find today represent the first inscribed types worn by old regiments. From the camps and barrack sites, or haply from scenes of conflict, or from an occasional grave, we gather the little metallic discs whose numerals constitute a roll of the British regiments in America.

"Some few regiments, as will be seen, had their numbers expressed upon their buttons on a plain surface, or field. Some buttons had a plain field with a cord, or milled border, while others again bear profuse decorations.

Fashioning of the Buttons.

"The officers' buttons have, as a rule, thin repousse silver, or gilt, faces and bone backs. The space between the face and the cone-like back was filled with a paste or cement, but before the button was assembled a stout cord, or bit of gut, was passed through four holes in the back and knotted on the inside of the button, and by means of the loops thus formed the buttons were sewn to the uniforms.

"The privates' buttons were universally of white metal, or pewter, and had as a rule iron wire shanks, which were cast into a boss on the backs of the buttons.

"In addition to the buttons referred to as of 'officer,' or 'private,' we have to figure a type distinct from either of these. The variety in question is very rare—in fact, no two of a regiment have been recovered. They have white metal convex faces and tinned iron backs, with iron wire shanks. The specimens so far recovered are of the Seventeenth, Thirty-third, Thirty-seventh and Fifty-seventh regiments. It is surmised that these were worn by some particular officer of the regiment who had a special button of his own, regardless of what was worn by the other officers or the men. It was the guess of the late S. M. Milne that these hollow buttons were worn by the quartermaster sergeants of the regiments. The very remarkable thing about the collection herein figured is that it was garnered almost entirely from sites within the limits of Greater New York, and that to this day such sites have escaped the hand of 'improvement,' and remain in an almost primitive condition. Furthermore, it has been the button hunters' good fortune, that invariably the sites have been a 'no-man's-land,' where the explorers could work undisturbed by owner or overseer."

Tut's Widow in Royal Romance

Sought to Wed Son of King of Hittites While Pharaoh's Body Was Not Yet Cold.

Luxor, Egypt.—An ancient Hittite document, recently unearthed in Anatolia, discloses an amazing royal romance in which Queen Ankhs-Amen, consort of Pharaoh Tut-Ankh-Amen, was one of the principals. It also appears that the queen was banished by Tut-Ankh-Amen's successor, Pharaoh Ay.

This remarkable document has been translated by Prof. Archibald H. Sayce, one of the leading Babylonian and Egyptian scholars of Great Britain. It reveals the extraordinary fact that, while King Tut-Ankh-Amen's body was still upon its bier, awaiting burial, his twenty-seven-year-old wife dispatched an ambassador to the king of the Hittites, who was then besieging the ancient city of Carchemish, between Mosul and Damascus, to induce the king to give her one of his sons in marriage.

Message of Queen.

"My husband is dead," said the Egyptian queen to the Hittite ruler through her ambassador. "I have no children. Your sons are said to be grown up. If you will give me one of them, and if he will be my husband, he will be a great helpmate."

The king of the Hittites apparently doubted the motives and good faith of the Egyptian queen. He replied to her overtures:

"The son of your lord (the king) where is he? Have you deceived me? The general of the army (Horemheb) has not nominated my son to the kingship."

The queen thereupon rejoined:

"What is this you say? I have deceived you? If I had a son and my

SECOND GLANCE

By GRACE CANFIELD

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"NO, I thank you," said Mr. Pelham gently; "prunes make me sneeze." His landlady, Miss Caruth, looked up in surprise, to Mr. Pelham's gratification. His first experiment had worked.

When he reached his office that morning, he walked to his desk, and opening his drawer, laid his hat inside instead of hanging it on the wall.

"It's a theory of mine," he explained to Evelyn that evening, when she questioned him about the odd color effect of his red-cloaked horse and his purple tie. "I have decided to be famous, as the quickest way to wealth." He pondered a moment. "To be a novelist would be best, I think."

A speculative gleam came into Evelyn's lovely blue eyes, but she was not one to criticize without being sure of her ground.

"Won't you please explain it to me?" she asked, with deceptive naivete.

"Well," Stanley began, with the comfortable assurance a man assumes when explaining anything to a woman, "what a man is, depends entirely upon what his neighbors think he is. They are going to think me a genius."

"But how," queried Evelyn, "if you don't really write the novels?"

"What's a novel?" scoffed Pelham. "Anyone can write one. Just look at the junk turned out every day! But the minute a man's name gets known, his work sells like wildfire. So I wear funny ties, and say that prunes make me sneeze, and I keep my hat in the desk drawer, and a lot of other things. People always notice. They stop and look at me again. Take it from me, Evelyn, it's that second glance that counts. Do you understand?"

Evelyn looked over the list of peculiarities which Stanley had left proudly with her. It contained such items as "never swim in fresh water"; "airplanes instruments of the devil"; "jewelry distasteful"; "never use Christian names." Evelyn's pencil paused halfway down the sheet, and she smiled with satisfaction.

Pelham, raising his ringless hands in horror that evening over the idea of attending light opera, was pleased to observe the curious eyes of many of his fellow boarders upon him. The conversation gradually veered about to the subject of crime, and Pelham expressed the opinion that many of the burglaries in the neighborhood recently had been committed by airplane pilots, too conspicuous to be suspected.

"Mrs. Stone's house, now," he said. "That chain of pearls might be laid along the end of a wing support, and not be discovered in a hundred years."

"Or it might be kept in a desk drawer," said one of the boarders casually. Pelham looked up, and unconsciously reddened.

"You know," remarked a second boarder, "there is a theory that those burglaries are done by someone in this neighborhood."

Pelham was uneasy when he rose from the dinner table, though he repeatedly told himself that he was unreasonable. Nevertheless, when he paused at a corner to arrange his purple tie, he turned, flushing, from a near-by policeman. For the first time since the formulation of his theory, he shrank from the second glance.

"Why don't you wear pins any more?" asked Peck at the office, and Stanley immediately forgot his momentary discomfort.

"I detest jewelry and such affectation," he pronounced pompously, and watched for the familiar gleam of wonder in Peck's eye. Instead, he saw a narrowed, speculative glimmer.

"Listen here, Pelham," Peck's voice was lowered. "I'm not one to butt in, and you would be safe with me anywhere, but you'd better watch your step. No one trusts his neighbor nowadays. That Stone affair made things pretty serious."

"What do you mean?" cried Pelham. "Nothing, probably," Peck shrugged. "But it doesn't pay for a man to begin suddenly acting queer. Better line up with the others—if you can." With this parting shot he stroiled off.

It was a miserable day for Pelham. Every time a glance was directed toward him he shrank as from a blow. The result was that he seemed queerer than ever. His mind was in a turmoil. What on earth could he do to deflect such ridiculous suspicion from himself?

"How is the author, Stanley?" cried Evelyn, brightly, that evening.

"Don't speak of it!" Pelham paled a little. "I've been an awful fool, Evelyn, and now I may be in for something serious. Why on earth didn't I know enough to stick to the hardware business?" he finished savagely.

"Then you've given up your plan?" Perhaps the disappointment in her voice was not so real as she tried to make it, for Pelham looked at her closely.

"Do you want me to?" he asked. She nodded. "Writers are such bores," she laughed. Stanley still looked grim.

"If I can only make them believe that I didn't do it!" he muttered.

"Oh," said Evelyn, as one who could not only read his thoughts but could predict the future as well, "they'll never trouble you about that again!" And they never did.

All who would like to hear Mrs. Olmsted speak about the work of the organization are cordially invited to a parlor meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert Mills Beach, at 8 o'clock, Tuesday evening.

Manager Ward Fisher, of the Electric Supplies Store, returned home Sunday after spending the week in Chicago, Ill., attending the special instruction school of the Hurley Manufacturing Co., makers of the Thor electric washer, ironer and other appliances. This week, Bossart DeHass, one of the general clerks in the store, is in Chicago, taking a special course given by the Hurley company.

A big event for the theatre goes of Bellefonte will be the staging of the sparkling musical fantasy "Springtime" on May 9 and 10 under supervision of the John B. Rogers producing company and for the benefit of the local Campfire Girls. "Springtime" will be bright with good music, clever acting, attractive costumes, and a spirit of airy, lightness through it all that will make a very popular appeal. Bellefonte's best musical and dramatic talent is included in the cast and it is very likely the show will play to crowded houses both nights.

William J. Dorworth, superintendent of the industrial department of the General Electric Co., with offices in Philadelphia, visited over Sunday here with his mother, Mrs. E. S. Dorworth. He brought with him his two little children, William Jr., and Anne, who will remain at the Dorworth home on East High St. Mrs. Anne Cator, who was the mother of Mr. Dorworth's wife, and who since the latter's death at Baltimore about one year ago had resided with the children at Greensboro, N. C., died at the latter place last week following a brief illness.

Rev. G. W. Eminhizer pastor emeritus of the local United Brethren church, this week received a letter from the Stratford Company, a big publishing house of Boston, Mass., informing him that two of his manuscripts, "Bible History" and "Fulfilling the Prophecy," had been accepted for publication in a large book that will soon be published and that a contract should be signed by Rev. Eminhizer, which would entitle him to a royalty of 40 per cent. It was very gratifying to the esteemed pastor and his friends that his manuscripts were of such type as to be accepted for the new book.

REV. SMITH WILL LEAVE HERE

Huntingdon Has Urged Him to Accept the Pastorate There.

Rev. George E. Smith, pastor of the United Brethren in Christ church of Bellefonte this week accepted an appointment by Dr. J. S. Fulton, of Johnstown, superintendent of the Allegheny conference, to the Huntingdon church. The appointment was made after Rev. Smith had been urged to accept the pastorate of the Huntingdon church and had been elected by the official board of that church.

In a communication from Rev. Fulton which Rev. Smith received on Tuesday, he stated that he has two men available for Bellefonte, one from Dayton, Ohio, and the other from Princeton, New Jersey, for the summer. No action has been taken regarding a successor to Rev. Smith whose resignation takes effect June 1st.

On Sunday Rev. Smith completed a pastorate of four years here. By the end of this month he will have served just a few weeks longer than Rev. C. W. Wisey and will have to his credit the distinction of having been pastor in Bellefonte for a longer period than any other appointed here.

In the time he has been in Bellefonte he was fearless in speaking his mind and got along very well in spite of withdrawal of members who resented the unvarnished, direct straight forward talks which were frequently indulged in. The church officials generally upheld Rev. Smith in his program and, if we understand rightly, he was paid a better salary than former ministers.

At Huntingdon, he will have a large field and will receive an increased salary. Rev. Smith also said, "I feel that this would be my last year in Bellefonte, having served over four years, and the pastorate at Huntingdon appeals to me. There need be no break in the services and work here and I think it was best to accept the appointment."

The Dear Old Circus.

What a flood of reminiscences it brings to the grownup. What a world of wonderment to the boy at his side, as he gazes at the pictured pageantry of Hippodrome, Menagerie and Circus depicted on the neighboring billboard or barn. We feel sorry for the grownup, too old, or calloused, in whose veins the milk of human kindness and understanding has so soured that he no longer feels a thrill as the gaily colored posters meet his eye.

Sorry for one so embittered with life that he has no sympathy for the enthusiasm of the youngster at his side, raised to the seventh heaven of delight by that anticipated visit to the circus.

Circus day! That wonder day of all the year! The day when the red wagons arrive, with the elephants, the funny old clowns, the trumpeting bands, the steam calliope, the bespangled girls, ponies, horses and wild animals.

The man is old indeed whose heart does not warm to the memory of that long ago boy, who like the boy of today, with his mop of unruly hair, his quota of stubbed toes and stone bruises looked so eagerly forward to circus day.

Circus day! There is nothing like it under the sun! Be a boy again with all the dreams and longings of that boy you were long ago, and see The Walter L. Main Big Three Ring Circus at the fair grounds, Bellefonte on Monday, May 7th.

The Minstrel Parade.

The Academy Minstrels' parade on Thursday, May 17, at 5 P. M., will be led by the famous Wetzel's Boys' band of Milesburg, in their fifty uniforms. The Academy Minstrels will be shown in the opera house in Bellefonte on two nights, Thursday and Friday, May 17 and 18. Each evening, two short hours teeming with fun, entertainment and genius. Van Hee, interlocutor, with six funny ends, good soloists and some splendid chorus selections. The new quartette composed of Cecil Walker, Capt. Frederick Reynolds, James Seig and Clarence Williams, will present selections on each evening. A feature will be the Academy orchestra with Sam Diebert and George Johnson, versatile instrumentalists in piano, violin, saxophone, clarinet, xylophone and traps, musical features alone worth the price of admission. Remember, the proceeds is to assist in getting a better water supply for the Hughes' Memorial pond.

A Welcome Pay Envelope

HONEST, old man, I don't know what we would have done without that AETNA ACCUMULATIVE ACCIDENT POLICY.

When a fellow lives on the "no-work-no-pay basis" and has nothing to fall back on, a cracked head and a broken arm don't get him anything. All he can do is sit around and wonder how the wife can scrape together enough to keep the family going. He just naturally worries himself twice as sick.

But this Aetna Accident Policy takes the place of the pay envelope. Gives you $50 a week as long as you're totally disabled by your injuries and $25 a week even though you are only partially disabled by them. Pays the bill for a surgical operation, too.

All you do is sit back and tell your broken head and arm: "All right, boys, take your time about healing. I'm provided for until you're fit again."
